

British Values & Protected Characteristics

At Carlton Digby we introduce British values during assemblies using Picture News, where young people engage with current stories that help them understand key values such as democracy, the rule of law, individual liberty, and mutual respect and tolerance. Following the assembly, additional sessions allow them to explore the story further, linking it to British values and protected characteristics in a meaningful way. Beyond these sessions, we embed these values throughout our curriculum, ensuring they are woven into everyday learning. We also make explicit links within PSHE, helping young people develop a deeper understanding of their rights, responsibilities, and the diverse society we live in. Learning about British values and protected characteristics supports their personal development and links closely to our school drivers of preparation for adulthood, communication, health and wellbeing, aspirations, and independence, empowering them to navigate the world with confidence, respect, and a strong sense of self.

What Our Young People say...

"I think we should be able to watch more ladies football on TV!"

(Finley after learning about Alice Hopkins- a blind female football player)

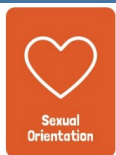

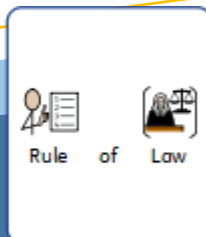

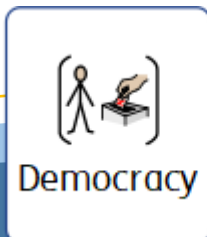

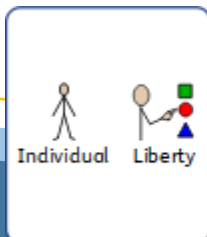

"We had to put a cross on the paper and put it in a box and not tell anyone who we chose!"

(Evie in reference to our school council vote)

You can't let your drone go over someone's garden - they might be cross!

(Harry talking about the rules and laws around using his drone)

We encourage our young people to express their thoughts and feelings about the news we've shared.
